

Audubon

Bird-Friendly Blooms

Whether you grow your blooms in containers, window boxes, a yard, or a traditional garden, consider adding natives to your home this season. Native plants, shrubs, and trees look beautiful AND provide critical habitat to birds, bees, butterflies, and more. Plus, they require less water and fertilizer, saving you time and money! Find more native plant ideas at pa.audubon.org/bfc.

Want to...

Plant these natives!

... welcome more songbirds?

Blend grasses, shrubs, and trees for healthy habitat.

American Beautyberry
Birch (black, paper, river)
Cherry (black, chokecherry, pin)
Common Winterberry
Dogwood (pagoda, gray, silky, red osier)
Little Blue Stem
Pennsylvania Sedge
Serviceberry (common, Canadian)

...see more butterflies?

Opt for plants that host caterpillars of native butterflies!

Black Willow
Blueberry (highbush, lowbush)
Joe-Pye Weed
Maple (sugar, red)
Milkweed (common, swamp)
Oak (white, black, red, scarlet, pin, chestnut, swamp white)
Spicebush
Viburnum (cranberry, arrowwood)

... attract more hummingbirds?

Add nectar-bearing plants to your garden!

Blue Flag Iris
Cardinal Flower
Coral Honeysuckle
Eastern Red Columbine
Great Blue Lobelia
Pink Azalea
Trumpet Creeper
Turtlehead (white, pink)
Witch Hazel

...support more pollinators?

Think flowering plants!

Aromatic Aster
Bee Balm
Black-eyed Susan
Blazing Star (dense gayfeather)
Coreopsis
Goldenrod
Hyssop (anise, yellow)
Purple Coneflower
Wild Geranium